PAPER

An ELA teacher's guide to Paper™

From back-to-school season to final exams, Paper's comprehensive Educational Support System is dedicated to providing ELA teachers with resources to help their students succeed in reading, writing, critical thinking, and beyond. Let's take a look at a few ways to incorporate Paper's tools into your existing ELA curriculum.

Tool No. 1: Live Help

A teacher's assistant for every student—anytime, anywhere.

→ Students can receive the support they need—whenever they need it—by logging in to Paper™ and starting a Live Help session. Here, students can connect within seconds to receive in-class assistance with complex academic concepts via text-based chat.

→ Teachers can also incorporate Live Help into their syllabus as the go-to resource for 1:1 tutoring outside of the classroom, ensuring parents/guardians know their learner can receive extra academic support whenever needed.

> Pro tip: Utilize Live Help support for bell work or exit ticket assignments, or have students begin a session and explain to an ELA tutor a newly taught or complex concept.

Tool No. 2: Review Center

An asynchronous writing lab designed for detailed personalized feedback.

→ Students can submit writing assignments for expert feedback. Learners can note their writing concerns and attach instructions and rubrics for each uploaded assignment to ensure the feedback they receive is relevant, helpful, and aligned with classroom instruction.

→ Foster creativity, curiosity, and career and college readiness! With the Review Center, students can submit creative writing, poetry, résumés, cover letters, college application essays, and more for student-centered feedback and support.

> Pro tip: Building Review Center checkpoints into essay assignments and other larger writing projects' instructions, rubrics, and unit plans ensures students receive helpful feedback throughout the writing process while preserving teachers' time and work-life balance.

Tool No. 3: Paper Reading

A practice tool that listens as students read aloud and monitors fluency and literacy across key metrics.

→ Teachers can assign readings directly from the Paper™ platform to support younger students and English learners.

→ Learners receive immediate feedback following a Paper Reading session, and teachers can access data-driven insights to reward students' progress and make differentiated scaffolding seamless.

> Pro tip: Teachers can cultivate a love for reading in their students by encouraging them to explore Paper Reading's digital library and find texts that pique their interest—making this tool a helpful resource for independent reading time in the classroom or at home.
