

Paper's new Student Recognition feature drives learners' motivation and performance

Students who use Paper's Live Help are already met with friendly tutors and gentle encouragement—but we're taking motivation one step further. Now, both teachers and tutors can formally give students the shout-outs they deserve via our Student Recognition feature. After assessing a session, teachers and tutors can send the learner a "Kudos" representing a job well-done.

How does Paper's Student Recognition work?

Teachers or tutors can select from a variety of themed recognitions to send to students in the form of digital stickers. Whether students were exceptionally kind to a tutor, went above and beyond with their collaborative attitude, or something similar, Paper has a themed sticker to recognize the student's efforts.

After a teacher or tutor sends a recognition for a standout tutoring session, the student receives a notification. Students will also be able to filter their tutoring sessions by which ones received special recognition.

How Paper's Student Recognition benefits students, teachers, and tutors

Students

- ✔ Positive encouragement helps drive motivation, performance, and a sense of achievement that encourages students to visit Paper more often.
- ✔ Recognition—especially from trusted teachers—helps students understand that their efforts are noticed and appreciated.
- ✔ Because students can reference what sessions received Kudos, they'll be able to build on praiseworthy habits.

Teachers and tutors

- ✔ Teachers who send Kudos create a cycle of continuous growth among their learners through much-deserved recognition.
- ✔ At the same time, tutors who send Kudos in tandem with teachers add to this cycle of positive growth among students.
